

Life in Fukuoka

By Ruthai Thaveechulavong

August 1, 2016

At the afternoon, I had a meeting with Dai who is one of Japanese students at Neko's guesthouse. Dai come with insurance officer. He explain about internship insurance and he wanted me to sign some documents and copied my passport.

At the evening, I had a meeting with Japanese friends. We went to Joy Cafe for ate a dinner. I ordered Buta-don which have a bowl of rice topped with pork simmered, Miso soup, mashroom salad, and raw egg. How to eat this meal, you must take raw egg to the bowl of rice topped with pork simmered. And Then you must stir until it mixed. Then you can eat it. I'm surprised about how to eat this meal because I never eat raw egg before and this is my first time to try this meal. After I tried to eat, I think I don't like it because I don't like the taste of raw egg.

After that we went to Hanabi festival at Ohori park. Hanabi is a firework Festival. The firework displays give color to the night sky and create a lively summer season. At Hahabi festival i saw mostly Japanese attend this event wearing the traditional Yukata and Jinbei. And around this event there had many Yatai shops. I really enjoy with everything at this event. I hope that next year I can come to Fukuoka for Hahabi festival again.