

Life in Fukuoka

At the lunch, I had plan to go Hirao Restaurant where is in Tenjin area. I knew this restaurant because I read some reviews on TripAdisor about a really cool tempura restaurant in Tenjin area. So I decide to go there today. When I arrived, I saw many people were waiting to go inside the restaurant. The line there was pretty crazy and it seemed very popular with the locals. Before I go inside this restaurant, I must order by a ticket machine on the left of the entrance.

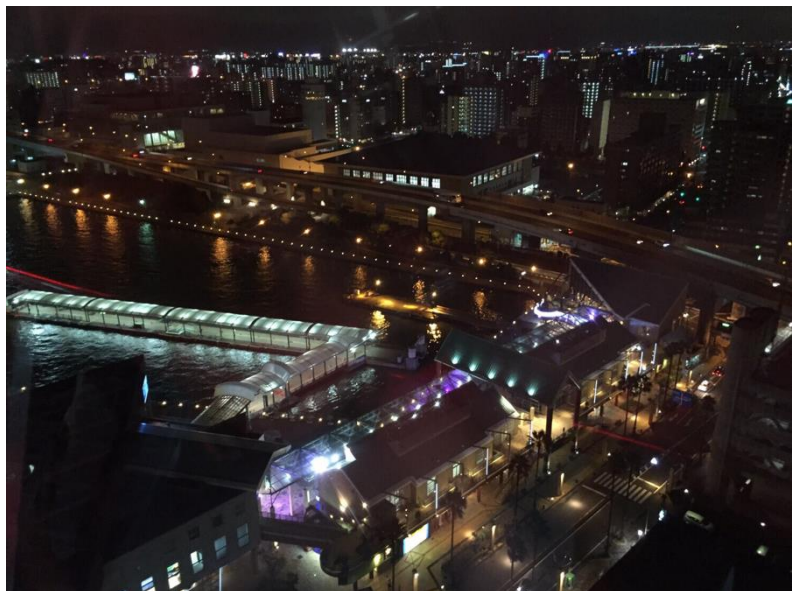

When I went inside, I sit at the counter and showed my ticket to a staff. Then the staff immediately put a bowl of rice, soup, and tempura tray for me. While I was waiting for my tempura, I could have unlimited side dishes. I can't believe that included cuttlefish! The hint of lime was perfect. I could eat this with rice for a meal. And then the tempura kept coming.

They serve when it's been cooked. The tempura is amazing tastes. It's a bit sweet and very juicy. I think the quality of the tempura is really superb.

At the evening, I and other Thai students had a meeting with Mrs.Neko, Mrs.Jun and Mr.Tsubone. They brought me to sightseeing somewhere that I never go in Fukuoka before such as Hakata Port Tower and Atago Shrine.

After that They brought me to eat the dinner at The Lockup Restaurant which is haunted prison themed restaurant. Before we went inside, we must walk through the darkness to reach the entrance of the prison gate. When we opened the gate, the lady warden put the handcuffs on us. Then she charged us for crime and lock us up in the one of the prison rooms. We ordered a lot of foods. There had a little surprise cake. I'm impressed very much.
